"NOYE'S FLUDDE"

by Benjamin Britten

Petroc Trelawny: Voice of God

Nicholas Warden: Noye

Yvonne Howard: Mrs Noye

William Agnew: Conductor

Jamie Hayes: Producer

Lucy Wilcox: Designer

Plus many children from North Devon and Somerset

Britten's Noye's Fludde was first performed at the 1958 Aldeburgh Festival. Based on a Chester Miracle Play, it involves children from the local community as well as celebrated professional artists, in this case from BBC Radio 3, the Royal Opera House and the producer who co-directed Miss Saigon. It is a much loved work, remarkable for its simplicity, despite the extraordinary range of instruments employed.

Tickets: £14, £12. Concessions: £12, £10.

Finish approx. 8.45pm.

Please note that there is a coach leaving the Square in South Molton at 6pm for those who don't wish to drive to Lynton. Cost £4 per person return. Please contact the Box Office at time of booking if you would like to take up this option.

CLASSIC fm

With 6.7 million listeners a week and more than 10 million listeners a month, Classic FM is the largest commercial radio station in the UK and the biggest classical music station anywhere in the world.

In addition to the radio station, Classic FM has successfully launched a magazine, a record label, and more recently, a TV channel, all of which are designed to bring classical music to a wider audience.

Classic FM works closely with a number of arts organisations like The Royal Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra, The Sixteen, The London Symphony Orchestra and the Philharmonic Orchestra on projects which aim to enlarge the audience for classical music.
